

innovation partners

Working at the forefront of the technical convergence between television and the Internet, Angli Partners provides innovative solutions to media distribution problems for broadcasters, corporations and consumers. We have a thorough understanding of all the relevant technologies from satellite networks and electronic design to interface design and broadband internet services.

imagination partners

As a consultancy we are unique in combining technical expertise with creative marketing flair. Through agencies in Cambridge, London, New York and Amsterdam we can provide marketing solutions ranging from hardware design to advertising and branding. We understand how to capture real user requirements through efficient product design and how to promote complex technical solutions simply and directly

integration partners

Solutions not only need to be invented and promoted. Critically, they need to be installed – often in large numbers and across the globe. We have over 20 years experience of building up media distribution networks worldwide and we work with companies with experience in mass-market and specialist installation of reception equipment.

independent partners

We are independent consultants and can therefore advise you of the best solution for your needs without pushing any particular vendor's products or services. We simply aim to bring the maximum creativity to your media distribution needs

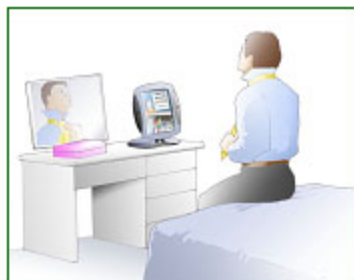

Paul McGhee (CEO) has 20 years experience in marketing, business development and network building in television and the Internet. He has worked for companies such as Sky, NBC, GE, Europe Online and New Skies.

Paul has participated, as an investor or senior executive, in many successful start-ups from inception to sale or stock market flotation.

Consumer Television Solutions

Tomorrow's households will use television and Internet media differently. We are involved in creating some of the most innovative consumer products you will see in European homes in the coming years.

Our proprietary home terminal, for example, will combine Digital Terrestrial Television (Freeview) and broadband internet in a single unit for use in kitchens, bedrooms and kids' rooms.

Corporate Television Solutions

Corporate use of media is evolving. Video over corporate networks, in the office and on the move is increasingly an essential part of internal and external corporate communications. Our video streaming solutions are used by some of the largest organisations in the media and government and we can also provide immediate corporate television production facilities.

Satellite Network Solutions

We have extensive experience in satellite networking for video and internet content distribution. Delivering programming via satellite and terrestrial networks need not be as complex or expensive as you think and global connectivity can be arranged at short notice through our space segment broking business.

